Partner introduction

Portugal is represented by two organisations within the HELIVM project, the University of Porto and ANI – the Portuguese National Innovation Agency. Together they have set out to improve the healthcare innovation landscape in the Norte region by tackling the Regional Operational Programme Norte 2020.

Cosiness program

Achieving win-win situations sometimes originate from unexpected areas. The Cosiness programme is a great example of this. Linking students with elderly citizens is what they do, reducing

Portal Interregional Seminar

From the 29th till the 31st of March, the project consortium was in Porto for the 3rd official Interregional Seminar of the HELIVM project. On the 29th the consortium was invited to attend the Health Cluster Portugal even – Health and Wealth Through Innovation. The official HELIVM program started on the 30th and was focused on Lets-Blend-It stage of the project.

Patient innovation

People in similar situations often draw towards one another in order to be able to relate with others who understand the impact of such situations. Healthcare is particularly susceptible to this phenomenon and Patient Innovation makes this possible. Patient Innovation is an online platform whereby patients and caregivers from all over the world can connect to share and create solutions they developed themselves or with the help from collaborators to cope with health-related problems.
