

ED I

General information on the examination period Rules and regulations

The present academic year differs greatly from the previous years, therefore we had to introduce certain changes in the daily routine of the examinations. The changes are valid only for the present examination period.

The examination period starts on May 18, and finishes on July 3, 2020. Examinations will be held on Tuesdays and/or Thursdays depending on the subject/course (see the exam days in neptun).

In the Faculty of Dentistry all examinations will start with an e-learning type written part. Students are entitled to log in the moodle system and have an attempt at the test ONLY if they are registered in neptun. Students will have to identify themselves upon request. The department may limit the accessibility of the tests by using a specific password for each occasion.

Once a student has logged in to see/try the test it will automatically be considered as an attempt to pass the test, thus the number of available exam chances will be reduced.

Absence („no-show”) from the examination will reduce the exam chances unless a medical certificate is presented to prove the reason for missing the examination.

The use of illegal devices is strictly prohibited and will be followed by a disciplinary procedure.

Unsuccessful written examinations (i.e. when the result is less than 20.00 points /50%) are terminated with a fail (1), then the mark will be recorded in neptun. Unsuccessful examinations may be repeated according to the instructions of the Examination and Study Policies only if the students have chances left.

Announcement concerning CV semifinal examinations in Macroscopic Anatomy I.

Students sitting for a CV semifinal examination in Macroscopic Anatomy I. will have to register in neptun and write the examination from home via the Moodle system.
Examinations will start at 13.00.

This time the semifinal CV examination will be composed of a single written part with 40 MCQ type questions / 40 minutes (passing rate is 50%, at least 20,00 points).

Please remember, that you may only use the remaining chances when planning your examination period.
Students will have to have a valid examination in Macroscopic Anatomy I. before they may register for the final examination in Macroscopic Anatomy II.

Announcements concerning acceptance of the semester and final examinations in Macroscopic Anatomy II.

Your semester will only be accepted if you have not exceeded the 25% limit of absences during the practical (regular or zoom) classes and have attended the obligatory midterms.

Final examinations will be composed of two distinct parts. The written part will be available during the present examination period* via the moodle system while the practical part will be done once the University has reopened and students have finished with their preparatory academic lessons in the dissection room.

Written part - the test is composed of 40 MCQ type questions/ 40 minutes, passing rate 50% (20 points). The result of an unsuccessful written examination will be recorded in neptun and the students will have to retake the test if they have chances left.

We are inviting our students to take part in an „exam competition” to be held during week 14. This is a written test composed of 40 test questions similar to the written part of the final examination covering the topics of the two semesters. All students having a valid exam/mark from the first semester may write the test, thus CV students are not eligible to participate.

Successful students will be exempted from the written test if they accept the mark offered on the basis of their achievement. Those students who are unhappy with the result of the „exam competition” test will have to sit for the moodle test in the examination period.

Please note, that students having an exemption are not entitled to log in (even if by mistake) in moodle during the examination period to view the written part of the final examination or their exemption will be lost and they should rewrite the test.

Practical examinations will be held in the dissection room when the University reopens and all the dissection classes have been completed. In case your practical examination proves to be unsuccessful, you may keep the previously earned mark of the written test (i.e. you do not need to rewrite the test) when you sit for the retake examination. The mark of the written test will expire if you need to postpone the final examination to the following exam period as a CV examination.

The result (grade) of the final examination will be composed of the written(25%) and practical (75%) marks.

Announcements concerning the acceptance of the semester and semifinal examinations in Microscopic Anatomy and Embryology I.

Your semester will only be accepted if you have not exceeded the 25% limit of absences during the practical (regular or zoom) classes and attended the obligatory midterms.

During the present examination period semifinal examinations will be composed of a single written test via the moodle system with 40 questions/images / 40 minutes, passing rate 50% (20 points). The result of an unsuccessful examination will be recorded in neptun and the students will have to retake the test if they have chances left.

Please note that while the 1st retake is again a written test, the 2nd retake of the semifinal examination in Microscopic Anatomy I will be an oral examination. These retakes will be recorded by the department, however students are not entitled to make recordings of any part of the examination or to use/open programs on their computers other than zoom.

Good luck with your examinations, stay safe and healthy!

Dr Andrea D Székely
Associate Professor, Course Director