Semmelweis University (hereinafter referred to as "the University") has been offering training in foreign languages for four decades and now it can be regarded as the flagship of our educational activity. Students come from more than 70 countries, and the tuition fee collected in foreign currencies is a significant part of the University's educational income.

Acting within the scope of my competence set out in Article 3 (4) d) point da) of Chapter I.1 of the University Organizational and Operational Regulations, I hereby give the following instruction:

Article 1

- (1) The personal scope of this instruction covers students in our English language courses who come from countries which are regarded as "high-risk countries". This means that citizens of these countries cannot pay in USD by bank transfer via a financial institution to the University, or make a direct payment in a bank branch to the University bank account in USD.
- (2) The purpose of this instruction is to support our students to manage their finances while restrictive measures are in place in cash flow between international bank accounts and cash payments in banks. The material scope of the instruction shall cover the payment obligation of students referred to in Paragraph (2) for the training fee to be paid in USD.
